The Town of Westfield Begins Sanitary Sewer Improvement Project in the Old Downtown Area

The Westfield Public Works Department (WPWD) announced today that crews will begin sanitary sewer interceptor improvements this week to the grassy branch sewer line. This sewer line runs along the Cool Creek tributary and the Anna Kendall drain, through the old downtown area of Westfield. Westfield officials are urging residents to be aware of the work crews and if changes in waste water services occur, residents should contact the Westfield Public Works Department, customer service line at 317-867-1116.

Crews will begin this improvement project on February 1, 2006. The work will be performed by the WPWD, Bowen Engineering and Insituform Inc. Town employees can be identified by an identification badge and/or uniform and the contractors can be identified by their trucks and/or equipment.

The project consists of cleaning the sewer line, video taping sewer line to inspect for any deficiencies and finally, making necessary repairs to the line. This process should take approximately two to three months to complete repairs.

“As a part of a town wide energy savings program, it is imperative that this project occur in order to improve our waste water collection system,” says Bruce A. Hauke, Westfield Public Works Director. “We expect that the inconvenience to Westfield residents will be minimal,” says Hauke. “However, if anyone experiences a change in their waste water service, please contact our offices immediately.”

On a rare occasion, WPWD will contact an owner to request that water usage be minimized for a short period of time. Should this occur, residents will receive a detailed letter or door hanger outlining the appropriate measures needed to be taken by the resident.

The Town of Westfield takes great pride in the services that they provide and the Town will continue to inform their customers about all upcoming projects. For additional information about the water and sanitary services that the Town of Westfield provides, contact the WPWD Customer Service Center at 317-867-1116.
